Barbecue Chefs At Work

FRED LINTON TAKES A STEAMING HOT BARBECUED BEEF roast from the pit where it had simmered for about 14 hours. Linton, Quarryville R2, a leader in the 4-H Red Rose Baby Beef and Lamb Club offers the barbecue to Mylin Good of Manheim R1, another adult leader in the club. Good inhales the aroma of barbecue—Western Style as other roasts continue to steam in the pit in the background. Nearly 250 persons shared the beef at the Penryn picnic woods on Wednesday night. —L. Beef Club Members Hold Western Barbecue

By: Jack Owen

The ultimate end of all beef club steers is beef. When that beef is served up Western Barbecue style to the club members and their families is in a fitting end indeed.

Almost 250 members of the families of Red Rose Baby Beef and Lamb Club members attended the barbecue at the Penryn Picnic woods on Wednesday night.

Under the direction of County Agent, M. M. Smith, three club members, Glenn Foreman, club president; Marlin Cassel, and Wilbur Hosler spent Tuesday night in the woods tending the fire for the Barbecue pit.

After keeping the blaze roaring all night the boys had about 18 inches of live coals in the forty-inch-deep pit. In the meantime, some of the club leaders under the guidance of Mrs. Smith were preparing the succulent beef roasts for their burial.

Early Wednesday morning the roasts, wrapped in two layers of butcher's paper, were gently laid on the layer of sand over the bed of coals. Rods were placed over the pit and covered with sheet iron roofing. After the whole thing had been covered with a layer of soil, the meat simmered in its own juices until Wednesday night's meeting.

This reporter was privileged to taste one of the first sandwiches made from the beef retrieved from its untimely grave. For the beef lover who has never eaten Western Style Barbecue, there is a treat in store whenever an opportunity comes along to attend one.

Corn Blight Noted In County Not Serious Pest Says Smith

Corn is continuing to grow well in the county with some firing of the lower leaves reported in many fields. The firing in most cases is the result of a type of leaf blight which causes browning of the edges of the lower leaves on the plant. According to County Agent, M. M. Smith, the blight is likely to reduce yield slightly in severe cases, but at present no treatment is recommended. Most corn crops are well enough advanced to withstand most of the damage of the disease.

With most of the rain during the past month coming as scattered thundershowers the soil moisture conditions in the county are spotty, but most areas appear to have good supplies of moisture for fall seeding. In its weekly crop and weather report the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service said that soil moisture is becoming quite serious in some central counties and in scattered localities in other parts of the state

Tobacco harvest continues to be one of the major farm chores in the county this week with reports of heavy crops coming in from most parts of the Garden Spot.

Farmers throughout the area were scanning their crops with an eye to selecting outstanding samples for exhibit in the local fairs within the next few weeks Indications are that the fairs this fall will have some of the best exhibits in years While rainfall during August was somewhat below the normal fall in some sections it fell on many different days keeping vegetable and field crops in growing condition and producing some excellent specimens.

Picking of tomatoes continues with yield and quality reported to be good and very little indication of disease.

Forage continues to make rapid growth and alfalfa hay is still being made. Pastur-

Ag. Secretary Gives Warning

Poisons Must Be Labeled

HARRISBURG, State Secretary of Agriculture William L Henning has announced that agents of the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry have been instructed to prosecute retailers of pesticides found making sales from bulk containers into unmarked cans and jugs.

"This in an extreme' dangerous practice," Secretary Henning said "In addition, it is a violation of the Pennsylvania Pesticide Act of 1957"

Delmar K Myers, acting director of the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, says that pesticides are considered to be misbranded if the labeling accompanying the pesticides does not contain instructions for use which are necessary for the protection of the public, if the label does not contain a warning or caution statement, and if the label does not bear an ingredient statement.

"Many of these pesticides are deadly poisons, especially in their concentrated forms," Myers says "It is a risk to the farm family to have them stored in containers which do not indicate what their contents may be.'

'For example, if some of the poison is ingested or spilled on the skin accidentally, it would be impossible to tell the treating physician the composition of the pesticide This knowledge can mean the difference between life and death. Analyses of pesticides are often complex and time consuming Death could occur before an analysis is completed"

Myers pointed out that the Pesticide Act provides for fines of between $50 and $100 for the first two offenses and fines of between $500 and $1000 for the third and subsequent offense.

Pesticides are any substances or mixture of substances intended to prevent, destroy, repel, or mitigate any insects, rodents, fungi, weeds or other forms of plant or animal life or viruses considered to be pests

Canned meats and meat products are convenience foods and they will keep at room temperature as long as unopened. Extreme heat or cold temperatures tend to cause color and flavor changes in the product, point out Penn State extension specialists. Rust or dents in the can do not mean spoilage unless either has penetrated the can and caused leakage.

FROM WHERE WE STAND -

One Day In The Country

A line from a poem by Christina Georgina Rossetti declares, "One day in the country is worth a month in town."

We know what she means. We like to think a day in the country is worth many months in-town, but we could turn it around and say, "One day in the city seems as long as a month in the country."

We recently had occasion to spend a day in one of the big cities, and the family enjoyed the day seeing the sights and looking at the things one can not see in the rural areas. Yes, the family enjoyed the day up to a certain point; but not one sight in the city could equal the sight of our little group of animals waiting to greet us as we drove in the lane to our Lancaster County home.

During the conversation in the city the subject of living in an urban community was brought up. The business executive with whom we talked was once a farm boy but he felt that the advantage of city salaries overshadowed the disadvantages of city living. Then he put on what he thought would be the clincher. He said, "Why fight it? Soon the entire eastern seaboard as far west as Lancaster County will be one huge city."

Our only rejoinder was, "You're probably right, but there are some of us who are not too happy about that thought."

Unfortunately he probably was right. As we drove home through the areas where just a few years ago great herds of cattle grazed on open hillsides and wide expanses of level valleys were covered with grain crops, now there can be seen only row after row of pepper-box type houses and service stations and motels striving to each one put up bigger, brighter and more elaborate neon signs.

But to get back to the other premise of the business executive. In many instances salaries are very attractive and commuting to suburban areas has become quite common. In the first place commuting is a rat race any way you look at it, but suburban living is not city living. We think about the people who have their residences within walking distance of the downtown areas and never get farther than just a few miles from their home.

We saw young men as they wandered the streets or lounged on door steps looking bored to death with time on their hands and nothing to do from one month to the next, and we were thankful that our boys only occasionally ask, "What can we do?".

We saw dust and smoke and filth and pollution and we were glad that when our boys come in from the garden with grime on them, we can douse them in the tub and know they won't have to be surrounded with the air full of trash all night long.

We saw the cold grey buildings shutting out the sunlight from the streets and we were glad that our boys have sunlight and can see the bright green fields in spring and summer, the colorful leaves in the fall and the clean pure snow in winter.

We breathed the sooty, smokey, smelly air of the ciy and thought how fortunate we were that the worst odors we were forced to be around is the smell of barnyard manure.

We pounded our feet on the steamy, hot sidewalks of the great city and could hardly wait to feel the feel of real earth under our shoe soles again.

The day of the hay-seed is a day long past. Farmers are no longer the ones to be looked down on for their lack of advantages. The business executive could name only one advantage his children have which ours lacked. They could visit cultural centers without the long car ride from the country, but he had to admit that those things become so commonplace that city people take very little opportunity to use them.

Let's not become so casual about our advantages in the country that we fail to appreciate them. We still agree with Miss Rossetti, "A day in the country is worth a month in town."

At least that's how it looks from where we stand.

Why No Peace?

Lesson for September 11, 1960

ASK ANY ten or one hundred people the same question: If you could have, tomorrow, an ideal world, a world made to your order, what kind of world would it be? You might get ten or a hundred different answers, but it is safe to say that one feature would be found in all of these ideal worlds: it would be a world at peace Nobody—nobody in America, nobody anywhere in the world — wants to live in a warring world. Everybody is in favor of peace.

Dr. Foreman

Why We All Want Peace

Turn to the Bible and you find the same thing. Every prophet who looks down the long vista of time to God's Golden Age, see a world at peace. Some of the best-known passages from the Bible are those from Isaiah selected for this week. So if human beings want peace, at least to this extent they are on God's side.

Why we hope for peace is plain enough. Reasons may vary from low (bad) to high (good). The prophets' reasons are certainly high ones. The reason why war is bad is what it does to people. Nowadays, of course, war means total destruction; but even when that is not true, war means the slow or swift degeneration of human beings. "All's fair in love and war" is not true but most people think it is, and the longer war goes on, the more people believe it. Lying, cruelty, theft, murder, adultery become commonplace. The enemy looks to us less than human (and so do we to the enemy), so that we make excuses for our beastly treatment of him by calling him a beast.

Why We Don't Get Peace

Now, why is it that som we all want, and that God we don't get? The history of ern Europe, and of the States, is one long series of We scarcely get over one the next one comes off the bly line. If it isn't a hot war cold one—and the "cold war" 20th-century invention Onl name is new.

Of course one reason we get peace is that we want wrong reasons. One of the monest of wrong reasons is th want peace in order to est our own nation (whatever that is) as "top dog" There been such periods of peace world, when Egypt, or Mace or Rome, or the British E just sat on the rest of the and maintained peace by thr force, maintaining its own po at the top of the heap The t with that kind of peace is th body likes it except the peo top of the pile. Sooner or lat people who have been sat cide they've had enough—an fight starts all over again.

The Things That Make For

There are other bad motiv desiring a world at peace, h can think of them withou much trouble. Let us look other point. We do not hi Jesus weeping often; but the rare occasions when he was when he looked on hi capital city and wept over saw in his minds eye "th . . . when your enemies wi surround you . . . and dash the ground" (Lk. 19 41-44) why? "The things that ma peace are hid from your Peace does not glide down heaven on a moonbeam Pea to be made and kept.

Prince of Peace

Nations neglecting these are going down the road t But the most important thi mains to be said: The natio neglects Christ is shutting off from peace, while the that is Christian is a strong for peace. This is not just a r of theology It is not saying you believe articles one, tw cetera, you will never have It is saying that the natio an increasing number of c whose lives are truly Chri who honor him and follow h a nation which is more and able to lead other nations way of peace.

Big Government

Just how much do you want from your government in Washington, and how much are you willing to pay?

Ponder that question carefully when you listen to campaign speeches about what the candidates promise to do "for" you if they are elected Remember, it will be you. not they, who will pay the bill.

Don't be misled by glowing accounts of "help from Washington," into assuming that it will be free, or that someone else will pay the bill in higher taxes There're literally hundreds of hidden taxes you pay and never know about.

A big corporation, for example, will pay a part of the increased tax burden, but you will foot the bill by paying higher prices for the things you buy. Most Federal taxes are hidden, but you pay them just the same.

Growing Washington Power

Before we ask for, or vote for, more assistance from Washington we should consider that we are creating a more and more powerful central government and removing control of government farther and farther away from us.

Concentration of power over taxation, spending and law making in a central government has preceded the collapse of democratic governments for almost 2,000 years. We should heed warning.

A report published in the Congressional Record shows the growth of Washington bureaucracy. The United States government is the biggest business in the world, with assets valued at over 2-thousand billion dollars. It has a debt amounting to almose three-hundred billion dollars.

Two Federal agencies—Interior Department and the Forest Service—own and operate more than 40% of all the land in the Nation There are dozens of other agencies with smaller land holdings.

The Federal government operates more than 700 corporate activities that, as the Record reports, "ride the backs of the American people as interest free, dividend free, rent free, cost free, tax free competitors of taxpaying producers and consumers."

Cost of Government

In 1926, when the first U. S. Code, a compilation of Federal laws, was published it was all in one volume. The latest publication fills 11 volumes of 900 pages each.

In that same year, 1926, Federal budgetary expenditures totalled $2 8 billion.

COUNTRY BOY
By: Carol Dean Huber

Once a farmer's children missed a lot of things
That living in the city and having money brings;
Those days are gone forever and it's a lucky boy
Who CAN miss a lot of things that city kids—enjoy?

In the country where each fellow has a special job
He isn't thinking of the places he could plan to rob.
When he is busy working or having wholesome fun
He has no time for switchblade knives a brickbat or a gun.

Now Is The Time . . .

TO BEWARE OF LATE - SEPTEMBE HAY-MAKING—Cuttings of alfalfa clover made during the last half of Se tember and just prior to a killing fro may do permanent injury to the future the stand. Sufficient time should be allo ed for at least 4 to 6 inches of growth b fore the killing frost. If this is not don then the plant roots do not have any r serve strength. In most cases if the sta is of rank growth it is better to wait u til after several killing frosts, and th growth has been stopped, and then remove the forage

TO TOP-DRESS FORAGE CROPS—One of the recommend ed times to apply phosphorus and potash fertilizer to an grass or legume mixture is in the fall after the last cro has been removed. In this area the time would be late Se tember or early October. Top-dressing with 0 20-20 or 15-30 at the rate of 300 to 400 pounds per acre will increas the yield for next season. The other suggested time fo this application is immediately after the removal of th first cutting next spring. Many successful growers will spl the application between these two times

TO KEEP THOSE STRAWBERRIES FREE OF WEEDS - Clean cultivation late into the fall between the rows o strawberries will eliminate the need for chemicals for wi ter weed control. Ground worked or cultivated duri late September or October will have less trouble fro chickweed or other winter weeds.

TO PROVIDE SPECIAL CARE AT FRESHENING TIME- Many dairymen are having a large number of fresh cow at this time of the year It is very important that the fres cow and the new-born calf receive the best of care Udd injury at this time may mean additional udder problem later in the lactation. A clean, well-bedded box stall awa from the other cows for a few days will pay dividends.

ager of the show explained that exhibitors are being invited to participate in the carcass class, a new feature of the show, in which the steers will be judged first on the hoof and later on the rail after slaughter.

The cattle will be shown on the hoof Sunday, November 13, and will be taken the following day to a Baltimore slaughterhouse where they will be prepared for the rack and judged The grand champion and reserve champion carcasses will be brought back to the fairgrounds on Tuesday, November 15, for exhibition

More than 1,500 livestock are expected to be entered in the Eastern National this year, with prizes totaling nearly $53,000 The exposition, often referred to as the "livestock show window of the East" will attract entries from at least twenty States and Canada

WHEN YOU ARE READY TO HOUSE YOUR PULLETS!

Pullets moved from range to the laying house find themselves in an entirely new environment, "Strange Quarters", as far as they are concerned.

1. Supply extra fountains around the floor and on the roosts, also feeders.

Some of the birds which looked so nice when you brought them in will have difficulty finding feed and water at first and get uneven and lose some weight unless feed and water consumption is kept at a high level by extra waterers and feeders.

2. Feed #33 EARLY BIRD POULTRY FITTING RATION in hoppers first 2 weeks instead of scratch.

When birds are brought in off range lack of exercise may cause some constipation Fitting ration helps keep comb color and vigor.

3. When changing to scratch don't have your litter too deep in the house at first.

Scratch in deep litter when pullets are housed is apt to cause a decrease in feed consumption the first few days. Put some scratch in the feeders as well as on the floor at the start.

When chickens are used to their quarters after the first few weeks build up litter gradually to desired depth.

4. If your chickens start to lay on range DO NOT FORGET Oystershells or Calcite Grit.

Without these the bird will draw on her calcium reserve in the bone structure to make the shells. This will eventually result in some weak and poor birds and poor shell quality.

5. Change to Early Bird All Mash or Early Bird Egg Mash & Grain when birds are laying 5 to 10%. These feeds will give you efficient low cost production of quality eggs with just the right yolk color.

If we can be of help to you in any poultry problem, please call your Miller & Bushong representative or dial Lancaster, EXpress 2-2145 direct.

Freezing Poultry

by Mrs. Richard C. Spence

There's no easier way of preserving poultry at home than freezing. Under the proper storage conditions, poultry from the home freezer can have the same flavor, color, and nutritive value as fresh poultry. It keeps well when frozen in a variety of forms uncooked—either whole or cut up; cooked—as slices or pieces, with or without bone, and in combination dishes or sandwiches

For success in freezing poultry at home keep in mind these things:

1. Select only fresh, high quality poultry.

2. Take special care to keep poultry meat and packaging materials clean to prevent the growth of bacteria.

3. Package chicken in moisture - vapor - resistant materials for freezing

4. Freeze and store at zero degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

5 Keep in storage no longer than the recommended maximum time.

When poultry is bought wrapped in plastic film or in tray packs, remove these and rewrap in moisture vapor-resistant material before freezing. Suitable wrappings include heavyweight aluminum foil especially for the freezer cellophane - coated or polyethylene coated freezer paper; and polyethylene plastic. These materials also come in bag form for whole or half birds. Wax-coated freezer paper is all right for short storage periods, but ordinary waxed papers and lightweight aluminum foils are not sufficiently moisture-vapor-resistant to be used in the freezer.

Rigid freezer containers with tight fitting covers are best suited for cooked poultry dishes that contain sauce, gravy, or broth. Aluminum, glass, glazed pottery, plastic, tin, and heavily waxed cardboard are all suitable materials for containers.

When packaging poultry or Poultry dishes for freezing it is important to force out as much air as possible. However, foods that contain some liquid require a certain amount of space at the top of the package to allow for expansion during freezing. Most rigid freezer containers have a mark or line to indicate how much space should be left.

Freeze quickly at zero degrees or below to maintain high quality. Place the packages against the sidewalls of the freezer or on metal freezing plates or shelves to speed freezing. A little space around the packages speeds freezing by allowing cold air to circulate freely.

Even under the most favorable storage conditions there are limits to how long poultry will keep well in the freezer. Here is a guide developed by food scientists showing the maximum storage life of various poultry products, if kept at zero degrees F. or somewhat lower:

Uncooked Poultry	Months
Chicken	12
Turkey, duck, goose	6
Giblets	3
Cooked Poultry
Slices or pieces with broth or gravy	6
No broth or gravy	1
Sandwiches of poultry	1
Cooked poultry dishes	6
Fried chicken	3

REFREEZING — Foods that have thawed completely and have warmed to temperatures of 40 degrees F. or higher are not likely to be fit for refreezing. Spoilage organisms in low-acid foods, such as poultry, become active and quickly make the food unfit to eat. Partially thawed frozen poultry with ice crystals still remaining may be refrozen safely.

FREEZING COOKED POULTRY

Cooked poultry for freezing may come from birds cooked especially for that purpose—or from leftovers. Any kind of poultry can be frozen satisfactorily. But some — fried chicken, slices or pieces packed without broth or gravy, and sandwiches—have a relatively short storage life. Meat from cooked whole birds should be removed from the carcass and packed solidly to eliminate air, which causes development of rancid off-flavor. Addition of broth or gravy will prevent contact with air and lengthen the storage life.

ROAST POULTRY

Divide meat into large pieces or slices, and small pieces. Package separately in meal-sized amounts. Package large pieces in freezer bags, or wrap in moisture-vapor resistant wrapping paper. Seal and freeze. Package slices or small pieces covered with gravy or broth in rigid containers, leaving headspace.

STEWED, BRASED, OR FRICASSED POULTRY

Cool cooked poultry quickly in the refrigerator. Package bony and meaty pieces together covered with broth or gravy in rigid containers. Or remove meat from the bones and package it with broth in rigid containers or without broth in cartons, freezer bags, or moisture-vapor resistant wrapping material.

SANDWICHES

Most kinds of poultry sandwiches freeze satisfactorily. Make the filling of sliced or chopped chicken or turkey meat. Mix chopped meat with cream cheese or a small amount of mayonnaise or salad dressing to moisten the ingredients. Add chopped olives or pickles, grated onion, or diced celery if desired. Do not add such raw vegetables as lettuce, tomatoes or watercress. These lose crispness, color, and flavor when frozen. Use day-old bread for sandwiches; it is better than fresh bread for sandwiches to be frozen. Spread bread with butter, margarine, or cream cheese. Spread liberally before adding chopped meat filling—to keep the filling from soaking through on the bread.

To freeze, wrap each sandwich in a double thickness of heavy waxed paper (for storage no longer than one week) or in moisture-vapor-resistant wrapping material (for storage up to 1 month). If you wish, place wrapped sandwiches in a cardboard box to keep them from being crushed during freezer storage Thaw sandwiches in the original wrapping at room temperature. It will take 3 to 4 hours. Use soon after thawing

FREEZING COOKED POULTRY DISHES

Creamed dishes, casseroles, salads, pies, and various other main dishes made with cut up cooked chicken or turkey are suitable for freezing. The following recipes include directions for both freezing and reheating. Recipes yield from 16 to 25 portions. Although each recipe specifies cooked chicken or turkey, either may be used in any of the recipes. For added flavor, fresh chicken fat may be used to replace butter or margarine.

This Week

This year it will be $78 3 billion, an increase of almost 3000% That gives you some idea of the enormous power of the Federal government in the economic life of our country at the present time.

How much does that cost you? In 1926 a man with two children earning $5000 a year and taking standard deductions paid a Federal income tax of only $7. The tax table for 1960 lists him a tax of $416, an increase of nearly 6000% in 34 years. Other, hidden taxes, have increased proportionately.

Those are some of the things to think about when we ask for more help from Washington.

Best Food Buys

Local Vegetables Still Good

Foodshoppers may note some influence of the railroad strike on local produce prices this week-end, observes Tom Piper, Penn State Extension Marketing Agent. Confused transportation and delivery schedules may interrupt normal supply patterns. Where this occures, supplies and prices of items from distant producing areas may be temporarily affected

Local produce production continues to provide a wide range of values at the food market. Sweetcorn, tomatoes, cucumbers, green and lima beans, peppers, eggplant and squash continue as gold market values and quality is excellent.

Katahdin and Cobbler potatoes are readily available locally Recent weather conditions have had some adverse affect upon storage qualities.

Local harvesting of peaches is almost completed. Dwindling supplies of the Hale and Elberta varieties are available at reasonable prices, Movement of early apples is still light but McIntosh and Smoke House varieties are appearing in local markets. Supplies of Summer Rambo apples continue to hold at bargain price levels.

Little change is forecast in meat prices for this week-end. Broiler-fryers, turkeys, lamb, beef steaks, roasts and pork chops will be featured items in some area food markets.

Grade A large egg prices have leveled off at the wholesale level. The supply of small eggs continues to grow and shoppers should check the price spread to determine which size is most economical on a weight basis.
